DIFFUSED LIPS

Painstakingly painted pout? Don't bother. Color that looks kissed off is equal parts pretty and cool.

1 EXFOLIATE with a gentle lip scrub to get rid of dead skin. Slather it on, then use a toothbrush—or the handy vibrating tool below—to slough away the flakes.

2 PAT on a hydrating lip balm. You want to smooth out any lines and cracks along the surface. Then blot off excess with a tissue.

3 SWIPE a pencil onto the center of your lips while your mouth is closed, and blend out the color with your fingers for a soft, lived-in look. “Let the color set for a few minutes, then press it with a tissue so the hue appears a bit sheer and worn off,” says makeup artist Daniel Martin. (He says Kate Bosworth swears by this technique.)

YOUR SUPPLIES

LIP SCRUB Bliss Fabulips 'Pout'-O-Matic Spa-Powered Lip-Perfecting System, $48; sephora.com. LIP BALM Softlips Cube in Fresh Mint, $4; softlips.com. LIP PENCIL Tarte LipSurgence Power Pigment in Flush, $24; sephora.com.

BONUS POINTS

Make It Pop

For a more high-def pout, apply lipstick straight from the tube, and blend it on your lips with your finger. “You achieve a certain payoff that a brush can't replicate,” says Martin. To highlight the shape, trace concealer around your mouth's perimeter with an angled brush or crayon, softening the edges with your finger.

Josie Maran Argan Creamy Concealer Crayon in Fair No. 1; $20; sephora.com.
