If you've ever wondered how Hollywood beauties like Jessica Biel, Miranda Kerr and Katy Perry maintain such constantly glowing complexions, look no further: Intraceuticals is your answer. The brand is famous for both its signature Oxygen Treatments (which are in high demand come awards season) and its anti-aging hyaluronic-layering skin-care regimen, which consists of a three-step process (Revive, Replenish and Protect) utilizing Intraceuticals's Daily Serum, Hydration Gel and Moisture Binding Cream — three products that work together to simultaneously lift, tone and hydrate the facial skin while also reducing the look of fine lines. Now, though, the company has taken its at-home regimen a step further by releasing retail versions of the powerful Booster serums it uses during its in-office Oxygen Treatments. Addressing a number of concerns (visible pores, sagging skin, loss of elasticity, puffy eyes, uneven pigmentation, dull skin), the Boosters ($49) can be used alone or mixed with the Daily Serum as part of the Revive step. Read on to see what each Booster targets.
